

Parent/Guardian Certification of Student's Dependent Status

(For Parental/Guardian Access to Dependent Student's Education Records Without a Release from the Student)

According to federal law, once a student enrolls in an institution of higher education, whether the student is over age 18 or not, the student's parents/guardians no longer have automatic access to the student's education records. However, if the parents/guardians claim the student as a dependent on their federal income tax return, they may have access to the student's Piedmont Community College education records without the student's prior written consent. Because tax dependency can change yearly, parents/guardians wishing to establish eligibility to receive information from their students' education records must furnish the following information each year.

Note: If you have more than one child enrolled at Piedmont Community College, please submit a completed form and attachments for each child individually.
